PROGRAM

South Africa cannot be understood without being experienced. The program involves visits to vital Cape Town landmarks and meetings with powerful people in the contemporary cultural and political spheres. This is not merely a course about history; it is about living and breathing South Africa today, in all its vibrant complexity.

Program highlights include daily visits to profound historical landmarks, meetings with cultural influencers and history-makers, and—most critically—time engaging with incarcerated individuals inside two storied Cape Town prisons that have played a vital role in the South African struggle since the Apartheid era.

ACADEMICS

Undergraduate Course:

The Culture of Race, Resistance & Revolution (3 credits): This course provides students with a deeper understanding and appreciation of the key issues facing South Africa, then and now, as related to three things that have shaped the nation: race, resistance and revolution. Starting with pre-colonial South Africa and lingering in the contemporary cultural sphere, we look to understand the “why” and “how” of South Africa’s recent history, and the deep roots of debates in the country up to the present day. Our aim is to get a handle on South African culture beyond the too-simple Mandela-as-savior veneer, with an emphasis on the “born-free”/post-Apartheid generation and the country’s present-day criminal justice crisis. Students will explore South African culture through an interdisciplinary lens, considering literature, film, memoir, music, journalism, pop culture, primary and secondary historical sources and criminal justice texts.
